Most people know me as a business development manager for a major multinational company. What they don't know is the passion I have for photography. Well, I am a self taught Brazilian photographer with dual citizenship living in the United States since 1997. I am a proud father and an avid bull terrier lover. I can't remember a time in my life when photography didn't capture my interest. I guess my love really started when I received my first Kodak camera on my 11th birthday. I knew that camera was the start of a love affair. Through the lens of that basic camera, I began capturing images of moments in time that I never wanted to forget. I was hooked! I took pictures of friends, nature, shapes and anything in my path. The birth of my kids really took this love for photography to the next level. There wasn't a moment of their lives that I didn't want to capture.

I love to keep learning every single day and experiencing new ways to see the world through my art. To be able to capture that millisecond in time and with extraordinary natural light has the greatest influence on my development as a photographer. With this as my guide, I make sure to find the time to get out and explore whether it is while traveling overseas, within the United States, or right here at home in Austin.

Each image, captured and carefully processed by me, represents my vision and the moment of time from my own unique perspective. It gives me great joy to share my art and even more when one of my printed pieces finds a new home. The thought that it will continue to bring someone joy is a great gift in itself.
